Energy Vault, a Swiss company which initially entered international markets with gravity-based storage technologies before expanding into lithium batteries, has signed a $350 million (USD 234 million) agreement with Australian developer Enervest to deliver a 1 GWh lithium battery for a site in Stoney Creek, NSW.

Energy Vault has connected its first commercial EVx gravity-based energy storage system to the grid in China, while construction has been launched on three others, all-in-all totalling 468MWh of capacity.

Energy Vault has started construction on an 18MW/36MWh system in Texas for Enel Green Power, a partnership first announced in mid-2021, for a mid-2023 delivery date. The second is using conventional battery storage which the firm has increasingly started deploying under its Energy Vault Solutions (EVS) segment.

Switzerland-based energy storage specialist Energy Vault Holdings Inc (NYSE:NRGV) has made a final investment decision (FID) for the deployment of a 57-MW/114-MWh battery energy storage system (BESS) in Texas and has also signed an offtake agreement related to the asset with AI-enabled power marketer Gridmatic.

Find out why Energy Vault EVx is one of the best inventions of 2024. The ever-present pull of gravity amounts to a natural battery that can provide short-, medium-, or long-term storage, says

As a result, the initial project in China only stores energy for a 4-hour duration, exactly the sort of application that lithium-ion batteries win at almost every time. Energy Vault sells the product on longevity: Batteries degrade, but if a G-Vault works for 35 years, the levelized cost of storage goes down. This requires selling to the sorts
