What challenges were faced in extending the floating solar farm in Taiwan? One of the main challenges faced in extending the floating solar farm in Taiwan was accounting for tidal changes in the near-shore location. This required careful planning and design to ensure the stability and efficiency of the floating photovoltaic (FPV) system.

A 347-hectare solar farm off the west coast of Taiwan will reduce CO2 emissions by 136,000 t annually. 74,000 households can now tap into power from solar panels floating on the ocean surface. one major disadvantage of offshore solar panels is that the salty air and spray cause a lot of wear and tear on panels.
